“ Mark Baxter was a great guy, and I am glad to have had the pleasure of knowing him! When he first moved to Loretto, he used to come down to the restaurant, order lunch and sit at the bar for hours just to talk bourbon. After a few weeks of this we asked if he wanted to be paid while he was here and started work the next day. You could tell history and bourbon were his passions, he was an encyclopedia of knowledge on many subjects, but he always got super excited when speaking/teaching about bourbon and its history. I am in shock that he is gone, and from myself and the entire crew at Star Hill Provisions we extend our deepest sympathies to not only his family but also the "bourbon world" who have lost a great contributor. Rest easy my friend.

“ I've known Mark for twenty years. We started college together and have remained friends the entire time. I remember my trips to visit him in Richmond and our road trips to KY. One of my favorite memories is an impromptu trip to Louisville when I was living in Chicago. We met up, found a random hotel, and spent the weekend cruising around downtown Louisville. I will miss Mark, his endless love for all things Bourbon, his wonderful cooking skills, and the energy he had for everything he loved. RIP dear brother. You will be missed.
